Today's 65-year-olds are the first generation to have a life expectancy of 20-30 more years. Many are as healthy physically and cognitively as people decades younger. Researchers say this a new stage of human life-- beyond middle age, but before old age. This "longevity revolution" is already reshaping our society. What does it mean for you?

Second Act Coach Judith Kurnick helps lawyers, executives and business owners envision and plan how they want to use this time. In this interactive virtual presentation, she will share the latest research and offer tools to help you reset your thinking about what's next for you, professionally and personally.
